COVID-19 death toll climbs 4 in Jefferson, 2 in Carroll

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County is reported four additional COVID-19 deaths and Carroll County has two more in data released by the department of health in both states.

According to the Indiana Department Health, Jefferson County COVID death toll now stands at 118 during the pandemic while the Kentucky Department of Public Health said Carroll County has had 38 deaths.

Jefferson County also saw an increase COVID-19 infections with 124 new positive cases over the last two days — 53 on Wednesday and 71 on Thursday — for an overall total of 6,958 during the pandemic. However, the county's metric improved to "Orange" on Wednesday with a 13.5% positivity rate.

Carroll County has had 31 new COVID-19 cases over the last two days for 2,428 overall. Carroll remains in the "Red" metric for high spread with a 23.53% positivity rate.

Switzerland County's COVID-19 death total remains unchanged at 14 but the county's metric is "Red" for high spread with 41 new cases in the last two days — 20 on Wednesday and 21 on Thursday — for a positivity rate of 14.3%.

Trimble County had no new COVID-19 deaths with a death toll at 30 and a "Red" metric for high spread. Trimble had 25 new cases in the last two days with a 39.39% positivity rate.

The fast-spreading omicron variant has pushed Indiana's number of confirmed COVID-19 infections to an average of

ROAD WARRIORS

Above: A Kentucky Department of Highways truck plows snow on US 421 in Bedford, Kentucky, during Thursday's winter storm. Snow fell from about 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. — heavier amounts in Kentucky than Indiana — with most roads snow covered until trucks could plow and spread deicers. The storm resulted in several slideoffs in both states and one minor injury accident on Telegraph Hill near Madison. Students were sent home early Thursday and classes were switched to virtual on Friday.

Commissioners get report on snowfall response

BY BOB DEMAREE

With the first significant snowfall of the winter season in Jefferson County on Thursday, Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips reported that his crews were out working to make roads as safe as possible at the Commissioners meeting.

"We've had crews out since it started" with flurries around noon Thursday. He said by about 1 p.m. roads were "getting a few slick spots."

He said the highway department's efforts in clearing and salting roads "it helps but when the temperatures are in the teens, it's not quite as effective" so he cautioned for careful driving, even as highway crews work to make roads as clear as possible.

Meanwhile, Phillips announced the county was awarded Emergency Watershed Protection (EWP) assistance from the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) which will provide funding for shoulder work on Wolf Run Road in a section that's near a bridge about a half-mile from the Manville Christian Church. He said the project is related to a stormwater issue from nearby Wolf Run Stream that is not only putting the road in jeopardy but also a utility pole that's located there.

"It's a combination of roadways and utilities that are threatened," he said.

In other business, the Commissioners:

• Agreed to a contract with Stifel Financial of Indianapolis to research if lost revenue by the county during COVID-19 might be eligible for American Rescue Plan recovery funds that could go into the county's general fund. Commissioner David Bramer noted it's part of the process of determining how the county will utilize its $6.2 million in ARP funds.

• Heard from Charles Malinowski, owner and founder of Malcon (Malinowski Consulting Inc.) about a consulting service in which the county can receive fuel tax refunds by claiming county vehicles that are characterized as not being used to wear out the roads. He said the primary benefit would most likely be found with highway department vehicles that may be eligible. Malinowski said his firm is paid only if the county is reimbursed, and receives 50% of the county's reimbursement up to $3,000 over a quarter (three months), meaning the most that Malcon can be reimbursed is $1,500. He said if the county is reimbursed more than $3,000, Malcon would receive only the $1,500. The Commissioners took the matter under advisement for review by the county attorney.

• County Health Department Administrator Tammy Monroe submitted a request for $64,329.48 for replacing 18 windows with insulation at the Jefferson County Health Department building on a quote from Kinsinger Custom Windows of Vevay. The Commissioners will follow-up on the request after Tuesday's County Council meeting.

Candidate filings open for 2022 elections

Deadline to enter is noon on Feb. 4

BY BOB DEMAREE

This week's opening of candidate filings for 2022 elections has already set up a possible rematch of the 2018 Jefferson County Sheriff's race in the November general election depending on the outcome of the May primary.

Dave Thomas, the Republican incumbent elected in 2018, has filed for re-election while Democratic challenger Tim Davis also announced his candidacy.

In 2018, Thomas defeated Davis by 686 votes with 53% of the vote in the general election. In the Democrat primary that year, Davis had defeated Yancy Denning by 31 votes while Thomas ran unopposed in the Republican primary.

Thomas was a former Indiana State Police officer for 20 years and was working as chief deputy in the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department when elected sheriff four years ago.

Davis has worked as a reserve deputy in the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department as well as a jailer and dispatcher for the jail. He also worked more than two decades in construction.

Animal shelter has made progress on cat population

Loss of Humane Society funding a concern

BY BOB DEMAREE

With progress being made on reducing the number of cats at the Jefferson County Animal Shelter, there was much discussion at Wednesday's meeting of the Animal Shelter Advisory Board on the decision by the Madison-Jefferson County Humane Society to end its $45 contribution per animal to help defray the costs for spaying and neutering pets adopted from the shelter.

Lindsay Stultz-Weyer, the shelter director hired in November, said there are currently 25 cats at the shelter of which seven are pre-adopted with the owners more comfortable with them being spayed and neutered before leaving the shelter. She said the shelter also has 22 dogs with 13 already spayed and neutered with two pre-adopted.

"Our cat numbers are significantly down," Stultz-Weyer said, noting the facility had 60 cats in December.

In December, the humane society announced a decision to discontinue funding for spaying Health officials on Thursday added 150 COVID-19 deaths, increasing Indiana overall death toll to 18,794. Indiana has averaged more than 40 deaths daily since early December and Hoosiers are the country's ninth lowest rate among fully vaccinated populations at 52.1%, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

On Thursday, the Indiana Department of Health announced that Hoosiers aged 12 to 15 who received their second dose of the Pfizer vaccine at least five months ago are now eligible to receive a booster dose following approval from the Centers of Disease Control and Prevention and the FDA. The FDA also expanded the Pfizer EUA by shortening the time between the completion of the primary vaccination series from six months to five months and allowing certain immunocompromised children ages 5 to 11 to receive a third primary series dose. The Pfizer vaccine is the only vaccine approved for individuals younger than age 18.

The Jefferson County Health Department urges all Jefferson County residents and visitors to get vaccinated against COVID-19. Schedule a vaccine by visiting www.ourshot.in.gov. Walk-in are accepted at the health department office Monday through Friday 9 a.m.-3 p.m. at 715 Green Road. All three vaccines — Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson and Johnson — are available.

Son-in-law is humiliating our daughter

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Hope you can give us some sage advice! My daughter is married to a man who has many good qualities but is very controlling. He knows everything and always must have things his way as well as the last word. When we are all together, he dominates the conversation when we are eager to hear from his wife who we all miss and love.

My daughter is well aware of her husband's shortcomings, but she loves him and continues to take his verbal abuse and put-downs. Sadly, sometimes he does this in front of us. My other three children are very upset by this behavior toward their sister. To make matters worse, the husband has called me and my other children from time to time to complain about his wife (my daughter/their sister). It is VERY difficult for us to hear these petty complaints.

For example, he recently called me to say that he and his mother have been discussing my daughter's failings. Apparently, she doesn't cook the way he would like. He is a workaholic and comes home at odd hours even though he is his own boss. She can never rely on a time for dinner even though she has often asked him to let her know when he will be home. She does not prepare elaborate meals, rather she prepares a meal that she can reheat when he finally returns.

He also complained to me that my daughter will ask him which of two or three dresses he would like her to wear to an event they will attend together. She simply wants to please him. But he thinks she is wasting his valuable time and should make the decision herself without bothering him.

Recently, he called my eldest daughter to complain about his wife (her sister) and said, "If I divorce her one day, my life will be so much better." This has upset all of us. My children think that they should tell their sister what her husband is saying about her behind her back. And I hesitate as I think that this will break my daughter's heart to hear the nasty things her husband says about her to us.

You should know that we have all encouraged marital counseling. And they tried it, but apparently it has not worked because we continue to get these troubling calls from the husband.

The question for you is: Should we tell my daughter what her husband is saying about her to us? Or should we remain silent? Thanks for any help and suggestions. — Very Sad Mother of a Very Sweet and Special Daughter

Dear Very Sad Mother: Although your son-in-law became part of the family when he married your daughter, your allegiance should be to her first. Even if it's heartbreaking to hear, she deserves to know her efforts and time put toward being a wonderful wife are being wasted on a man who doesn't respect or appreciate her in the slightest, in public or in private.

In the end, I'm sure it will mean the world to your daughter to know that you and the rest of your family have her back because her husband clearly doesn't. He should be careful what he wishes for; "one day" might come sooner than he realizes.

Politics at the dinner table

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Politics took over as the main topic at our holiday dinner. I don't mind open debate among parties with differing views, as long as those debating have logical and fact-supported positions. Our dinner usually goes smoothly, as everyone gets along and, despite differing opinions, we all can adequately defend our positions. Dinner will come and go, and all are happy.

This year, my dad's brother joined us for dinner. He recently got divorced and was angry that he was with us and not his family. He was taking outlandish positions and making up arguments to support himself. He attacked everyone. The whole table was ignoring him, but I couldn't help it and continued to engage. It made for an unpleasant experience for me and for all involved. What's the best way to bury my desire to engage with someone like this? — Hoping for a Better Family Dinner

Dear Hoping: As Mark Twain said, "never argue with a fool; onlookers may not be able to tell the difference." Try to bring that quotation to mind the next time your uncle tries dragging you down into the mud for a fight. Another strategy is counting to 10 and, if you're still angry, counting to 20. If you're still angry after that, try excusing yourself to the bathroom for a few minutes to regain your composure. As far as including him in future plans goes, though it's important to support family during tough emotional times, that doesn't mean enduring verbal abuse. Set boundaries, and don't feel obligated to extend him an invitation to your next gathering if he can't agree to behave in a respectful manner.

Dear Annie: A while ago, you polled readers on whether or not they'd have children if they had it to do all over again. I wanted to share my story.

When I was in first grade, our teacher asked us what we wanted to be when we grew up. I said a mother and a teacher. Well, motherhood came first. Three years after I married, I started having children, two boys and two girls in five years. I enjoyed it. But there were hard times, too. The worst thing that happened was losing a child. My eldest son died of cancer in my arms when he was 17.

Now to fulfilling my first-grade dream in another way. A year after he died, I went to college and became a third-grade teacher when I graduated. I loved teaching this grade, with the children's eagerness to learn and their love of their teachers. I taught for 20 years and retired when the new principal and state laws had us only teaching to the tests and it was no longer any fun for the students or me.

Now my three living children are grown. I have six grown grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. After my husband left me, I bought a small farm, and my living son remodeled the pathetic old house for me and bought 8 acres next to me, where he now lives.

So yes, I'm happy to have had children, and even dealing with the death of one, I still have my memories of what a special son he was — a musician, magician, poet and reader with a sense of humor. — 80-Year-Old Happy Grandmother

Dear Happy Grandmother: Thank you so much for sharing your inspiring story. It sounds as if your son was a beautiful soul. May he rest in peace. I wish you and the rest of your family a blessed 2019.

Madison Parks Board installs 2 new members

Board adopts some new rates for 2022

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison Parks Board opened the new year with two new board members at its first meeting replacing the previously longest serving members with a decade or more each.

New members Carla Eades Krebs and Phil Kahn replaced two long-serving members who left the board at the end of last year — Gayle Spaulding, who had served since January 2011, and Tim Whitaker, who had served since April 2012.

Parks Director Matt Woolard said Krebs and Kahn each "bring specialties to the board that we've been looking for. You've already been exceptionally engaged and interactive with ideas and thoughts, so we are very excited to have both of you join us."

Krebs is best known locally as an outstanding basketball player who played for Madison, was an Indiana All-Star in 1980, then to a successful playing career at Central Missouri State University and then a career in teaching and coaching before retiring and returning Madison. She also now serves on Madison City Council.

Kahn has been president of Prince of Peace schools for the last 13 years, and before that worked nearly six years at Eli Lilly and Company, and coaching basketball at various schools, youth leagues and travel teams.

They join returning board members Joe Bronkella and Zac Laughlin.

In the board's first action of the year, new fees were approved for Sunrise Golf Course, Crystal Beach and the Madison Campground. Rates at Sunrise Golf Course will remain the same, but Sunrise golf pro Roger Gallatin said that with the rates and the support of the golf board, it "gives me room for group pricing and to negotiate pricing" to bring groups to play at Sunrise Golf Course. Gallatin said 70% of the rounds at Sunrise come from members, "so it's the 30% of the pie that we're trying to grow."

Rates will also remain the same at Crystal Beach with general admission $5 for ages 6 and older, in which Woolard said there were 13,000 swimmers this past season to remain on par with previous years when there was a season pass structure. As a replacement to the season pass, swimmers are now offered a punch card in which after five visits, the sixth admission is free. Woolard said that change not only helped alleviate behavioral issues at the pool, but also increased the pool's revenue. "We're much closer to breaking even; we just need to hone in more on our overhead," he said, noting they have a plan in place to do that in 2022.

Woolard said the campground achieved nearly $100,000 in profit in the past year for the first time, and there are plans to re-invest all that money back into the campground, beginning with an upgrade of the restrooms and showers. Woolard proposed a 10% increase to camping rates, which the board approved, while also adopting a 20% increase during seven weekends the parks department has designated as premium weekends due to local tourism events.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said the rates must keep up with inflation. "Every year that we don't increase the rates" at the campground, "we erode the value because of inflation. Just the 10% keeps us even." He also noted because of deferred maintenance in the parks and the campground that efforts need to be realigned to support capital that is needed to make the upgrades and to provide maintenance.

In other business:

• Program Coordinator Chad Ison detailed plans to make upgrades in Kiwanis Park from an $8,000 gift to the parks department from an annuity of Carol M. Brown following her death. Ison proposed upgrades to the press box that include painting in patriotic colors of red,white and blue. Additionally, the upgrade would include replacing the current silver chain link fence with a black chain link fence.

Courtney said a $2.8 million renovation at Crystal Beach pool, located just across Broadway Street from Kiwanis Park, will include replacing the fencing there with a black chain link fence, and that doing the same at Kiwanis Park will provide a consistency in appearance.

"I love the idea of refreshing Kiwanis Park," he said.

Ison also said there is hope that in 2022 that youth travel leagues will be using John Paul Park, Rucker Sports Complex and Kiwanis Park all for tournaments that will bring visitors to the community.

"I think it's a great idea," said Kahn. "I think the fence is in pretty bad shape" at Kiwanis Park, and has "got run down at times and it's something that we need to maintain." He added the black chain fencing will provide a great improvement to Kiwanis Park. "People will notice the (new) fence. It's probably not unsafe, but it's not good at all."

and neutering pets adopted from the shelter with cat numbers still running high. On Wednesday, shelter board member Hannah Fagen expressed her disappointment that the humane society is discontinuing its contribution for spaying and neutering. "If we have an issue with the cat population in the community, why does the humane society make that decision?" Fagen asked.

Warren Auxier, president of the Madison-Jefferson County Humane Society and a member of the animal shelter advisory board, said the group had decided there were "better areas where we can spend our money. The problem that we have had at this point is that we've had a lot of people contacting the humane society directly because they were not being helped at the shelter. That may change as things go along, but we have had a lot of animals that we've had to spay and neuter directly." Auxier noted that much of the assets for the humane society are from Community Foundation funds "which we live off the earnings of those, and many of those dollars are not available to be spent."

He said that another factor in the decision is that Jefferson County is "not spending all the money every year that was budgeted to them. So why should we supplement the county if they aren't even using their current budget?"

Fagen followed up with a plea to the public to "please make your donations to the animal shelter. We have done work here. The board has stepped up. We have hired a new director." She said significant progress has been made with a foster program started and fewer cats at the shelter due to changes that have taken place since previous director Jenny Slover left in September. Fagan noted that Stultz-Weyer "came into a situation that's really very difficult and she's doing a really great job."

"I think we should all have the same goals in mind, you as the humane society and we as the animal shelter," Stultz-Weyer said. "The animals should come first. The animals should always come first. That's why we are here."

Tami Hagemier, also a member of the humane society, said there is a difference in the way the two organizations achieve those goals, noting "we do spay and neuter, and emergency vet care" while the animal shelter does "the things the humane society is not equipped to do."

With the humane society no longer subsidizing spaying and neutering, Stultz-Weyer confirmed that it will now cost $80 to adopt a cat. Fagen expressed concern that an increase in adoption fees could result in a decline in cat adoptions and create a greater challenge in keeping the shelter's cat population in check.

Hagemier expressed support for the current animal shelter advisory board and the changes the board is making.

"This is a great board and I think things are starting to change," she said, crediting that to the enthusiasm of board members to make positive changes. "There are good things happening."

However, Hagemier said the humane society answers to its donors, and not the taxpayers. "I know there are financial issues with the shelter and that's something the county needs to resolve," she said.

Auxier emphasized "it's important that the shelter be able to run and take care of the basic necessities with government funding versus relying on donations" — a point in which Fagen expressed agreement.

Meanwhile, Stultz-Weyer said the shelter is working toward having regular hours by the end of January with anticipation of being open afternoons on three or four weekdays, and possibly 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

"The main thing is that the shelter is on the up," Stultz-Weyer said, "... everything is so much better now than it was a month ago. It's not going to be overnight. It's going to take time and a little bit of faith."

In other business, the board elected its new officers for 2022 at the start of the meeting with Ray Denning, representing the Jefferson County Council, selected as president, replacing Jefferson County Commissioner Bobby Little, who was selected as vice president. Fagen was elected board secretary.

Prosecutor David Sutter also filed for re-election in Indianapolis on Thursday. Sutter, a Democrat first elected in 2018, said, "Our office works hard on every case, but we have placed a particular emphasis on aggressively prosecuting drug crimes, sex crimes, crimes against children, and battery."

He cited convictions in several cases to put meth dealers in prison, noting "my role as prosecutor is also to act as a deterrent for crime. We want drug dealers to know Jefferson County will be an inhospitable place for them.".

Tabatha Eblen, a Republican who has served as County Clerk of the Circuit Court since June of 2016, is seeking re-election. Eblen was first elected by Republican caucus in 2016 when Karen Mannix resigned to become County Assessor. Eblen was then elected to a full term in 2018.

Heather Huff, the incumbent County Auditor, also filed as a Republican. Huff has been serving as County Auditor since May when she was elected by Republican caucus when Sherry Eblen resigned the position.

Meanwhile, two current Hanover Town Council members have filed for re-election as Democrats — Treva Shelton in District 1 and Debbie Kroger in District 3.

Randy Frye, Republican state representative in District 67, filed his candidacy for re-election. With recent redistricting, District 67 now encompasses more of Jefferson County with seven of the county's 10 townships (Graham, Lancaster, Madison, Monroe, Republican, Shelby, Smyrna).

Also, Zach Payne, Republican state representative in District 66, filed his candidacy for re-election. District 66's portion of Jefferson County now encompasses Saluda and Hanover townships.

There have been two filings so far for the nine available Republican state convention delegate seats. Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and Joshua Daniel Webb, vice chair of the Jefferson County Republican Party and treasurer of Indiana 9th District Republicans, both filed this week.

The candidate filing period opened on Wednesday and until noon on Friday, Feb. 4. The primary is scheduled for Tuesday, May 3 with the general election Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Does Your Social Security Just Go Away When You Die?

"Those planning their retirements should consider what, if any, Social Security benefits could be available if you are the spouse, child, or parent of a worker who dies." Steve Dybwad

"Layin it on the line."

Many people planning for when they no longer work forget to include potential Social Security Survivors Benefits.

In 2021, workers can earn up to four credits per year, one credit for each $1,470 in wages or self-employment income. If a worker has hit $5,880 in wages, they have earned their maximum four credits the year.

How do those credits work?

Depending on a workers' age at the time of death, the number of credits necessary to provide survivors' benefits varies. The younger a decedent is, the fewer credits are needed for family members to get survivors' benefits.
When a worker dies, benefits may be disbursed to their children and the surviving spouse still caring for the children, even if that worker doesn't have enough credits. These survivors can receive benefits as long as the worker has credit for at least one and one-half years of work, or six credits, in the three years preceding their death. If there is no surviving spouse, payments typically go to a child eligible for benefits on the deceased worker's record. However, you will want to talk to a Social Security expert or claims representative about your options because of everyone's unique situations.

Who can get monthly survivor benefits?

Typically, these family members are eligible to receive monthly benefits when you pass away.

- Your widow or widower who is at least age 60.
- Or a disabled widow or widower aged 50 or older.
- In certain strict circumstances, your surviving former spouse may be eligible.
- Your widow or widower of any age who is caring for your child younger than age 16. Or if disabled and receiving a child's benefits.
- An unmarried child aged 18 or 19 and a full-time student in elementary or secondary school.
- A child 18 or older with a disability that began before they turned 22 may qualify.

What do you do when a family member passes away?

As of 2021, you still cannot report that death or apply for survivors' benefits online. That's why you need to contact Social Security and your financial advisor as soon as possible. The funeral director will often report the death to Social Security if you have provided them with the deceased's Social Security number.

There may be instances when you want or need to speak to a Social Security representative directly. In that instance, you can call the SSA at 1-800-772-1213 during regular business hours.

What are some other considerations and caveats?

Suppose you don't have a surviving spouse. A one-time, lump-sum death benefit of $255 might be paid to your surviving spouse if they were living with the deceased. If you were living apart, the spouse still might qualify if they received certain types of Social Security benefits on your record. In that case, the death benefit goes to any child eligible for benefits on your record in the month of death.

Suppose you were already getting benefits when you died. In that case, your survivors must return the benefits you may have received for the month of death or any later months. For example, if you passed away in September, you must return all benefits paid in October. Be sure your loved ones know they should not cash any checks received for the month in which you died or later.

Summing it up: These are just some of the many rules, regulations, deadlines, and other nuances regarding Social Security survivor benefits. That's why it makes sense to sit with a qualified Social Security expert so that you have a basic game plan in place when you or your spouse passes away. Planning will give you and your loved ones greater peace of mind when you are no longer there to help them.

Hibbard reaches 1,000 points in Hanover win over Mount St. Joseph

BY JORDAN BEAR

Always a dog fight, the men's basketball meeting between Hanover and Mount St. Joseph on Wednesday night was no different this time around.

Hanover was able to grab a hard fought 77-72 victory to increase its Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference record to 4-1 and 8-2 overall. The Lions were within single digits most of the game until Hanover used a run in the second half to take a comfortable lead.

Mount St. Joseph was scoring at will in the paint early on but Hanover was getting response after response thanks to big plays from Matt Munoz and Isaac Hibbard.

"Coach (Toby) Carrigan does such a good job with them. The way they run that Princeton style offense was giving us trouble especially in the first half," Hanover coach Jon Miller said. "I thought our guys were finally able to get into a groove in the second half and get a nice lead. Some mental mistakes made it a little interesting late, but a conference win is always nice. It's always a battle with them."

Hanover had a 37-31 lead at the half break thanks in big part to a big half from Isaac Hibbard. The senior from New Albany entered the game only seven points shy of 1,000 for his career. After hitting a layup and a pair of free throws early, he hit a 3-pointer with just under four minutes remaining in the first half to secure the milestone.

"Isaac has been so great for this team. Not only on the court but off the court as well," Miller said. "He sat out most of last season because he wanted a chance at a full season and he's making the most of it. The guys just love him on the team, and especially the young guys. He's such a great leader and it's truly a gift to have him as part of our team."

The Panthers were led in scoring by Munoz, who had 21 points, while Hibbard had 19 points and Ty Houston chipped in 16.

Hanover will have to move on quickly as its next HCAC battle will be today at Earlham College. Hanover did not play Earlham last year, but two years ago, the Quakers swept Hanover in the regular season series. The Quakers had to forfeit their game with Transylvania on Wednesday night due to the team dealing with COVID. Earlham has also changed its policy to where no spectators will be allowed to attend indoor events at this time but the game will be streamed live on the Earlham College athletics website starting at 1 p.m.

Mount St. Joseph used a big second half to pull away for an 82-74 win over Hanover in women's basketball Wednesday in Cincinnati.

Hanover blitzed out to a 25-12 lead after the first quarter and still held a 43-27 lead at halftime.

But Mount roared back, outscoring the Panthers 28-11 in the third quarter to take a 55-54 lead, then scored 27 points in the fourth quarter to complete the comeback.

Addie Gardner came off the bench to score 21 points to lead Hanover while Skylar Sahatjian added 17 points and Katherine Benter had 14. Chloe Jansen had 25 points and Maddie Haberthy 17 to lead Mount (5-7, 2-3 HCAC).

Hanover, now 5-5 overall and 2-3 in HCAC play, travels to Earlham today for a men's-women's doubleheader. No spectators are allowed at the event but the game will be streamed live on the Earlham College website.

Jackson-Davis scores 27, Indiana shuts down No. 13 OSU 67-51

BY MARK AMBROGI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Trayce Jackson-Davis had 27 points and 12 rebounds, and Indiana used stifling defense down the stretch to pull away for a 67-51 victory over No. 13 Ohio State on Thursday night.

Jackson-Davis made 11 of 17 from the field for the Hoosiers (11-3, 2-2 Big Ten), who went on a 13-0 run while holding Ohio State without a field goal for more than five minutes.

"I expect him to play like that," Indiana coach Mike Woodson said. "He's shown he can do that. I was harsh on him more than anybody else. We know he can score."

Jackson-Davis said Woodson told him he needed to rebound harder after Sunday's loss at Penn State.

"I thought I needed to play harder all across the board," Jackson-Davis said. "He's not going to call me out of every aspect of my game. But I got the message loud and clear. He and I have the relationship. He can call me out in front

Rematch blues: 'Bama tries to buck history in CFP title game

A mere 37 days after they last played, Alabama faces Georgia again with a national championship on the line.

History shows how tough it is to win again in the rematch.

Nick Saban knows that first-hand — from the losing side.

During the 2011 season, Saban's Crimson Tide were edged by LSU 9-6 in overtime during the regular season.

When the powerhouses met about two months later in the BCS championship game at New Orleans, Alabama smothered the unbeaten Tigers 21-0.

Now, it's the Tide (13-1) on the other side, looking to beat Georgia (13-1) for the second time in a little over a month after a 41-24 cakewalk in the Southeastern Conference championship game on Dec. 4.

They meet again Monday night at Indianapolis in the College Football Playoff title game, their last meeting separated

With playoffs ahead, Bengals QB Burrow sitting out finale

BY TOM WITHERS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — Joe Burrow's sitting out this one to rest for the playoffs. Baker Mayfield's skipping the season finale as well — for a very different reason.

To think what it might have been: Burrow and the brash, baby Bengals vs. Mayfield, Myles Garrett and the Browns for an AFC North title.

Instead, it's Brandon Allen vs. Case Keenum in a Cincinnati-Cleveland matchup that quickly went from bonkers to blasé.

The battle of Ohio's backups, and a snapshot of where the two organizations stand.

With Burrow nursing a sore right knee and the playoffs looming, Cincinnati is resting its young star quarterback on Sunday against the Browns, who are still trying to figure out what happened to a season long gone sour.

Just a week ago, it appeared the matchup would have playoff implications for both teams. But when the Bengals (10-6) stunned the Kansas City Chiefs to clinch the AFC North, they essentially eliminated the Browns (7-9), who were already going to need outside help after dropping three of four.

Burrow insists he's healthy enough to play, and would have if necessary, but the Bengals have loftier goals in mind that earning a season split with the Browns, who drilled them 41-16 on Nov. 7.

Cincinnati isn't taking any chances and will bubble wrap Burrow.

"Rest this week and get my body back to where it needs to be so I can get back to full strength running around the way I need to be Week 1 of the playoffs," said Burrow, who finished his second regular season with 4,611 yards, 34 touchdowns and completed a league-best 70.4% of his passes.

While the game appears meaningless, Bengals coach Zac Taylor feels there's plenty on the line.

"It's a regular-season divisional game. You got a chance to go 5-1 in the division. We played good football on the road this year," he said. "We also lost to this team earlier in the year, and we haven't forgotten about that. And so we want to finish the regular season on a good note."

Mayfield won't get that chance.

Battered and beaten down, Cleveland's QB won't play the final home game as he prepares to have surgery on his injured left shoulder Jan. 19.

Mayfield has played with a torn labrum since getting hurt in Week 2, and he and the Browns decided it's best for him to shut it down after he was sacked nine times in Monday night's loss at Pittsburgh.

It's a disappointing end to a dreadful season the Browns and Mayfield, and it's possible his run in Cleveland could be over.

He's signed through 2022, but Mayfield's inconsistency coupled with the team's reluctance to sign him to a long-term extension points to the Browns at least exploring other quarterback options in the offseason.

"I feel for him," said offensive coordinator Alex Van Pelt. "I really do appreciate his effort this season. The guy was definitely in pain a lot of the time. I've been around some tough guys, but he's up at the top of the list with the stuff he endured and went through this year."

"I know he wanted to be there for his teammates, but at some point, you have to make the decision that in this situation his health is most concerning to keep him healthy and get him right for the offseason for next year."

CASE CLOSED

With Mayfield out, backup Case Keenum will make his second start. The 33-year-old led the Browns to a win over Denver in October while filling in for Mayfield. And although this matchup with Cincinnati has the look and feel of a summer exhibition, Keenum insists players are motivated to finish strong.

Djokovic sends thanks for the support

BY JOHN PYE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The top men's tennis player in the world, Novak Djokovic, spent Orthodox Christmas in an immigration detention hotel in Australia on Friday as he sought to fend off deportation over the country's COVID-19 rules and compete in the Australian Open.

Novak Djokovic

Djokovic received calls from his native Serbia, including from his parents and the president, who hoped to boost his spirits on the holiday.

On Instagram, he posted: "Thank you to the people around the world for your continuous support. I can feel it and it is greatly appreciated."

The 34-year-old athlete and vaccine skeptic was barred from entering the country late Wednesday when federal border authorities at the Melbourne airport rejected his medical exemption to Australia's strict COVID-19 vaccination requirements.

He has been confined to the detention hotel in Melbourne pending a court hearing on Monday, a week before the start of the tournament, where he is seeking to win his record-breaking 21st Grand Slam singles title.

During the day, Djokovic's supporters, waving banners, gathered outside the Park Hotel, used to house refugees and asylum-seekers.

A priest from the Holy Trinity Serbian Orthodox Church in Melbourne asked to visit the nine-time Australian Open champion to celebrate Orthodox Christmas but was turned down by immigration officials because the hotel is under lockdown.

"Our Christmas is rich in many customs, and it is so important that a priest visits him," the church's dean, Milorad Locard, told the Australian Broadcasting Corp. "The whole thing around this event is appalling. That he has to spend Christmas in detention ... it is unthinkable."

The Australian Border Force said Friday that after further investigations into two other people connected to the Australian Open, one voluntarily left the country and another was taken into detention pending deportation.

The Czech Embassy identified one of them as 38-year-old doubles player Renata Voráčová and said she won't play in the tournament.

Australia's COVID-19 rules say incoming travelers must have had two shots of an approved vaccine, or must have an exemption with a genuine medical reason, such as an acute condition, to avoid quarantine.

Colts trying to get in, Jags ending season with 'Klown out'

BY MARK LONG
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — For the Indianapolis Colts to make the playoffs for the third time in four years, they need to do something they haven't done since 2014: win in Jacksonville.

It's hardly a daunting task considering the woeful Jaguars have allowed opponents to end skids almost weekly.

Jacksonville's last six opponents have halted multi-game losing streaks against the clawless and often clueless Jaguars (2-14). Although the Colts (9-7) don't fall into that category — they lost to Las Vegas last week after winning six of seven — they can snap a lengthy road skid against Jacksonville on Sunday.

"I don't want to overstate it, but the facts are the facts," said Colts coach Frank Reich, who brought up the road skid during a team meeting Wednesday. "I think it was important to note."

Indianapolis has dropped five straight in Jacksonville as well as another road game against the Jags in London in 2016.

It's an odd streak given how dysfunctional Jacksonville has been in recent years. Just look at fellow AFC South teams Houston and Tennessee, both of whom have dominated the Jags of late. The Texans have won eight straight in the series and 14 of 16; the Titans have won five in a row and nine of 10.

The Colts, meanwhile, have lost seven of the last 12 meetings.

"It's something that we acknowledge as a team," safety Khari Willis said. "We acknowledge it. Our head guy acknowledges that we haven't won down there since they've been here. That's a big deal for us, and we're pretty sure it's a big deal for them. It's one of those things. It's the elephant in the room. ...

"So we accept the challenge, we take it personal and we're going down there to try to take care of business."

If the Colts win or tie, they would give the AFC South two playoff teams for the fifth consecutive season — the longest current streak for any NFL division. Indy could still reach the postseason with a loss, but would need help from others.

Jacksonville has nothing at stake aside from securing the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft for the second straight year. The Jaguars have lost eight in a row and already have begun interviewing candidates for their next head coach, a list that included Indy defensive coordinator Matt Eberflus.

The process has been far from smooth so far, and the finale will feature a "Klown out" in the stands as part of a protest. Hundreds, if not thousands, of disgruntled Jags fans are planning to wear clown attire — red noses, colorful wigs, face paint — in hopes of persuading owner Shad Khan to fire general manager Trent Baalke, whose draft picks have been underwhelming and his free-agent class less than impactful.

Baalke's presence also appears to be hindering the coaching search.

"We want to do everything we can to win for this city, for these fans and obviously we haven't had much success this year," rookie quarterback Trevor Lawrence said. "That's frustrating for us as well, so I understand from a fan's perspective.

"Would I do that personally? No, I wouldn't do that. But fans feel how they feel and it's hard. Like I said, this year's been disappointing for all of us. We wanted to win a lot more games, so I get the frustration."

CROWNING ACHIEVEMENT

Colts running back Jonathan Taylor has been running away with the NFL's rushing title for weeks. It will become official Sunday. He leads the next closest challenger, Cincinnati's Joe Mixon, by 529 yards. Taylor's sensational second season already includes breaking Hall of Famer Edgerrin James' single-season franchise record for yards rushing. He could break two more notable franchise marks against Jacksonville.

Taylor is tied with James for the most 100-yard games in a season (10) and is tied with another Hall of Famer, Lenny Moore, for the most total touchdowns in one season (20).

"We know we've got the best in the business back there to turn around and give it to," quarterback Carson Wentz said. "So we've got to be able to capitalize in the pass game off of the play-actions, the movements, those types of things."

only by a pair of easy victories in the semifinal bowl games.

Saban tried to shrug off any comparisons to 2011, for obvious reasons. This time, he's the one who'll have to beat an SEC rival for the second time to finish No. 1.

"Those two games were extremely hard-fought, close games in both circumstances, and I would expect the same in this game," Saban said. "I don't know that there's anything that I can really take from that (2011) experience that's going to have any effect or impact on this one."

Georgia is hoping to replicate a similar scenario from the 2017 season. The Bulldogs were blown out by Auburn 40-17 during the regular season, but got another crack at the Tigers three weeks later in the SEC championship game.

Again, it was no contest, only the rematch had Georgia romping to a 28-7 victory that sent the Bulldogs to the College Football Playoff. Georgia coach Kirby Smart conceded that some key things have changed compared to what was on film leading up to this season's SEC championship game.

The Bulldogs can now study what they did wrong in their only loss of the season, as well as an impressive bounce-back victory over Michigan in the Orange Bowl semifinal on New Year's Eve.

"You've got to be careful," Smart said. "What tendencies changed, what matchups we're looking for, who is in, who is out. There's a lot of things that go into it."

There are a couple of reasons why a second meeting during the same season can be so much different than the first.

For one, the team that lost usually has plenty of obvious things it can work on in practice to try to reverse the outcome. Not so for the winning team, which has a natural tendency to stick with what worked so well. More important, perhaps, is the mental side.

A team that lost usually finds it a lot easier to get motivated heading into the rematch.

Rest assured, the Bulldogs — a unanimous No. 1 much of the season — have a huge chip on their shoulders after the way they were manhandled by the Crimson Tide last month.

Nets charge past Pacers in Irving's debut

BY MARK AMBROGI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Kyrie Irving scored 22 points and sparked Brooklyn to a big rally in the second half of his season debut, Kevin Durant had 39 and the Nets beat the Indiana Pacers 129-121 on Wednesday night.

Irving is ineligible to play home games because he is not vaccinated as mandated in New York City, and the Nets had decided against allowing him to just play road games for most of the season.

But they changed their mind last month and were glad they did Wednesday, when Irving helped them charge back from a 19-point deficit. The point guard played 32 minutes as Brooklyn snapped a three-game losing streak.

"He looks like himself, not that that's a surprise," Nets coach Steve Nash said.

Durant said it was amazing to see Irving out on floor again.

"He didn't act nervous, he has a nice poker face," Durant said. "He's a quiet guy. He plays with energy and passion."

Irving said he was nervous, adding it was different than any previous debut in his basketball career.

"This meant a little more, taking eight months off and so much uncertainty," he said "I settled down closer to the second half. Whatever the team (needs), I'll do."

Domantas Sabonis had 32 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists for the Pacers, who have lost in six in a row. Lance Stephenson, who had two previous stints with the Pacers, scored 30 in his first home game with the Pacers after signing a 10-day contract.

"Just working out two years, waiting for this moment," Stephenson said. "I'm so happy to be here, it's home. It's like playing in front of family."

Stephenson delighted the home crowd by scoring the final 20 points for the Pacers in the first quarter as Indiana took a 37-32 lead. He hit 8 of 9 shots, 4 of 5 3-pointers in that 6-plus minute stretch.

The 20 points were a record for any Pacers player in the first quarter. It was also the most points in the opening quarter for a player coming off the bench.

The Pacers shot 62% to a grab a 73-60 lead at halftime. Irving hit a shot at the third-quarter buzzer to cut Indiana's lead to 101-94. That capped an 8-0 run by the Nets.

Patty Mills sank a 3-pointer to put Brooklyn ahead for good at 107-106 with 7:23 left. Irving followed with two consecutive baskets to push the lead to 111-106 and Indiana never recovered.

"It came down to defense and effort, and second half was night and day to the first," Nash said. "It took us getting in a deep hole before we showed them the respect the game and them the respect they deserved."

Irving agreed that the comeback started on the defensive end.

Brooklyn shot 56% overall while Indiana finished at 49%.

Patberg leads No. 6 IU to rout of Wisconsin

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MADISON, Wisc. — Indiana coach Teri Moren made sure there was no letdown after a statement victory.

Ali Patberg scored 18 points and Mackenzie Holmes added 16 and No. 6 Indiana beat Wisconsin 76-53 on Wednesday.

The victory came four days after the Hoosiers' 70-63 overtime win over then-No. 6 Maryland.

"Being fatigued and tired is not a problem for this basketball team," Moren said Indiana. "We had business to take care of at Wisconsin.

"I'm wise enough to understand how to manage the couple days after Maryland knowing that it was a quick turnaround."

Patberg scored 12 points in the first half when Indiana used a 19-9 second quarter to take a 36-21 lead. Grace Berger had 11 assists and scored seven points in the victory.

Aleska Gulbe scored 13 points and had eight rebounds for the Hoosiers, who've won eight straight in the series against Wisconsin.

Indiana (12-2, 4-0 Big Ten) held Wisconsin to under 70 points, and the Badgers became the 14th opponent the Hoosiers have held below that mark.

Indiana had 18 assists on 28 field goals in the game. The Hoosiers shot 48.8% from the field. The Hoosiers shot 85.7% (12 of 14) from the free-throw line. Holmes and Grace Berger had eight rebounds apiece for Indiana.

Wisconsin coach Marisa Moseley said she is impressed with Indiana's depth on offense.

"They pretty much have a weapon at every spot in their starting five," Moseley said of the Hoosiers. "If you have that, you have to pick your poison in guarding them. They feel really well oiled in that way."

Julie Pospisilova scored 15 points and Sydney Hilliard scored 10 points for Wisconsin (3-10, 0-3), which was playing for the first time in 20 days after two Big Ten games were canceled due to a COVID-19 outbreak within the Badgers program.

Wisconsin's Brooke Schramek scored six points as the Badgers held a 10-5 to start the game. Schramek finished with seven points.

The Hoosiers have strung together seven straight wins and haven't lost since a 66-58 setback to N.C. State on Dec. 2.

Wisconsin is still searching for its first Big Ten win with Moseley, who was a head coach at Boston University.

Moseley also is a former UConn assistant under the Huskies' coach Geno Auriemma.

She said the COVID pause was tough, but she was happy with the Badgers' performance.

"I was really proud of them to push through," Moseley said. "They were gassed at different points tonight and I used more of my timeouts than I would have to give them a break, if we needed it."

The Badgers hadn't played since a 70-60 home win against Illinois State Dec. 16.

BIG PICTURE

Indiana: The Hoosiers distribute the ball and utilize a balanced scoring attack, with four starters posting double-figure scoring.

Wisconsin: The Badgers are adapting to the coaching style of Moseley. They struggle with ball handling, and finding consistent shots on offense.

Howard scores 30, No. 21 UK women slip past No. 15 Georgia

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Rhyne Howard scored 17 of her 30 points in the fourth quarter and No. 21 Kentucky controlled the fourth quarter to defeat No. 15 Georgia 84-76 on Thursday night.

Leading 58-57 after three quarters, Howard took over. She scored Kentucky's first five points in the fourth, added a 3-pointer in the middle of the quarter and scored the Wildcats' last nine points, closing the game on a personal seven-point run, including her third three-point play.

Howard now has 1,872 points, passing Victoria Dunlap for third on the UK career list. A small crowd saw Kentucky win its 100th game in history over a ranked opponent as fans were encouraged not to attend because of hazardous road conditions due to inclement weather.

The Wildcats (8-3, 2-0 Southeastern Conference), who hadn't played since Dec. 19 with their first two conference games postponed because of COVID, was 10 of 17 in the fourth quarter with a pair of 3s.

Dre'una Edwards had 17 points despite not scoring the the fourth quarter, and she had her string of five double-doubles snapped for Kentucky. Jada Walker added 15 points.

Jenna Staiti, who missed the last two games because of COVID, scored a season-high 26 points for Georgia (12-3, 1-2). Que Morrison added 14 points and Mikayla Coombs 11.

Georgia's biggest lead was six points and Kentucky's was eight as there 12 ties and nine lead changes through three quarters.

The Wildcats shot 52.2% and cashed in by scoring 20 points off 19 Georgia turnovers. Georgia was 18 of 20 from the foul line for a nine-point advantage and had a 38-24 rebounding edge but only went 2 of 10 from 3-point range.

Kentucky plays top-ranked South Carolina on Sunday while Georgia faces Alabama, a day before the schools play for the football championship.

No. 3 Louisville women roll over turnover-prone Pittsburgh 81-39

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Louisville coach Jeff Walz was close to gushing about his team's defense before saying that throwing opponents off rhythm is what the No. 3 Cardinals do.

They did it again Thursday night, pressuring Pittsburgh into a season-high 35 turnovers and beating the Panthers 81-39.

Emily Engstler had 12 points and 10 rebounds for her fourth double-double, and Hailey Van Lith had 12 points for the Cardinals (13-1, 3-0 Atlantic Coast Conference), who have won 13 straight.

Louisville quickly pounced on a Panthers squad playing their first game since Dec. 22, forcing 24 mistakes in the first half alone for 18 points en route to a 40-13 cushion. Overall, Louisville ended up just four forced-turnovers shy of tying the program record set against Northeastern Illinois on Jan. 13, 1992.

The Cardinals had nearly as many points (32) to show for all the mayhem they created.

"It's what we've been doing all year," said Walz, whose team also had a season-high 19 steals. "We're defending extremely well, we're putting pressure on the ball. Now, we didn't force all 35. There were some unforced turnovers, but I thought we did a really nice job of picking the ball up early, creating some defensive tempo."

Louisville also held Pitt to season lows in shooting (26%) and points, making it the ninth time in 14 games the nation's third-ranked scoring defense held an opponent below their scoring average.

The Panthers were scoreless for the first 4½ minutes and hit their first basket less than minute later. They scored in double digits in the final two quarters but never shot better than 28% in any quarter.

"Louisville is the No. 3 team in the country for a reason and they stifled us all game long on the offensive end of the court," Pitt coach Lance White said. "We turned the ball over way too many times to win against a really good team. We are going to have to limit turnovers moving forward if we want to have a chance to compete in this conference."

Emy Hayford had eight points for the Panthers (9-5, 0-3), while Rita Igbokwe had six points with 14 rebounds.

Louisville's stifling defense offset its 40% shooting (28 of 70), though Engstler provided the bright spot by making 5 of 11 from the field with 2 of 4 from long range. She also made a career-best seven steals, converting several into easy layups.

Van Lith made 4 of 11 shots for Louisville.

Olivia Cochran had 11 points, while Chelsie Hall and Payton Verhulst added 10 each for the Cardinals.

Louisville played without reserves Mykasa Robinson and Norika Konno, who were in COVID-19 protocols. Pitt was missing sophomore guards Sandrine Clesca and Liatu King, also due to COVID-19 protocols.

TELLING STATS

Pitt entered the game ranked 10th nationally with 299 free throw attempts but took just 15 against Louisville and made nine.

Conversely, the Cardinals were 17 of 18 from the line. ... Pitt has lost three ACC games by an average margin of 34.3 points.

BIG PICTURE

Pittsburgh: The effects of the Panthers' layoff quickly showed as they continually made mistakes that led to easy Louisville baskets, which limited shooting opportunities. The few they managed often missed as well. The upside: Pitt finished even on the boards with 43.

Louisville: Because the Cardinals disrupted the Panthers so often, their cold shooting was almost overlooked. What mattered was that their defense created so many chances. Five players reached double figures for the second time in three games and 10 scored at least one basket, impressive for a shorthanded squad.

"It really boosts everyone's confidence," Hall said. "It's good to see people in practice getting into the game and seeing what they've practiced. It's always fun to see everyone score, make points, get steals and even take charges. It was fun to see everyone score."

Ellis' 18 points help Louisville survive Pitt

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — El Ellis scored 18 points off the bench, including seven consecutive for Louisville during a critical late stretch to put the Cardinals ahead for good before holding off Pittsburgh 75-72 on Wednesday night.

A thrilling second half featuring 16 lead changes finally swung the Cardinals' way thanks to Ellis, who scored 14 points after halftime including a go-ahead 3-pointer with 5:11 remaining for a 63-61 lead.

The junior guard added another go-ahead jumper and two free throws to make it 67-63 before Sydney Curry added a layup and Noah Locke (13 points) a 3 for a 72-65 cushion that Louisville needed.

Jamarius Burton scored seven consecutive points — including two free throws after a technical foul on Louisville coach Chris Mack — to get Pitt within 74-72 with seven seconds left.

Samuell Willamson's missed free throw gave Burton a chance to tie in the final second, but his 3-point attempt missed and was grabbed by Ellis to seal Louisville's third consecutive win.

Ellis made 6 of 10 including 2 of 4 3s for Louisville (10-4, 4-0 Atlantic Coast Conference), which shot 54% in the second half and 48% overall to remain tied atop the league with Miami. Curry finished with eight points and eight rebounds.

Burton scored 21 points, Mouhamadou Gueye added 15 and Ithiel Horton 13 in his return from a 13-game suspension for the Panthers (5-9, 0-3), who played their first game since Dec. 28 after Saturday's game at Virginia Tech was postponed.

Pitt finished 44% from the field.

The teams finished tied on the boards with 34 but Louisville earned a 28-20 edge in the paint and 13-11 on second-chance points.

The Cardinals also made 20 of 30 free throws, scoring the game's first four points from the line following technical fouls on Panthers coach Jeff Capel and the bench during a chippy start featuring double technicals assessed on Louisville's Malik Williams and Pitt's John Hugley.

Williams fouled out with 1:55 left before picking up a second technical with 27 seconds left.

Kentucky receiver Robinson plans to enter NFL draft

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON— Kentucky junior wide receiver Wan'Dale Robinson is entering the NFL draft after capping a record-breaking season with an MVP performance in the No. 25 Wildcats' Citrus Bowl victory.

Robinson, who transferred after two seasons at Nebraska, announced the decision Wednesday night on social media. He thanked Kentucky teammates, coaches and fans in a video on Twitter and added, "as much as fun as it was this year in the blue and white, I'm sad to say it will be my last. I'll be entering the 2022 NFL draft."

The Frankfort, Kentucky, native used his speed to quickly establish himself as its top receiver. Robinson went on to break single-season school records with 1,334 yards on 104 receptions, becoming the first Wildcats receiver with 100 catches.

He also rushed seven times for 111 yards during the regular season.

Robinson caught 10 passes for 170 yards in Kentucky's 20-17, come-from-behind Citrus Bowl victory over No. 17 Iowa, a stellar effort highlighted by a clutch 52-yard reception to the 1 that set up the game-winning touchdown with 1:48 remaining.

The 5-foot-10 Robinson was named Most Valuable Player for his effort, adding to recognition that included second-team All-Southeastern Conference selections by coaches and members of The Associated Press.

of whoever he wants. I'm going to prove him wrong and bring it the next game."

Race Thompson was the only other Hoosiers player in double figures with 11 points.

Malaki Branham led the Buckeyes (9-3, 3-1) with 13 points, and E.J. Liddell scored 11.

Ohio State was held to 30.8% shooting and committed 15 turnovers, including five in the last 6:41. The Hoosiers held a 41-33 rebounding edge.

"They controlled the game offensively and defensively," Ohio State coach Chris Holtmann said. "Give Indiana credit, they really played well. We have to figure out a better plan of attack. Their defense is as good as we thought it would be. We missed some open shots, too."

Holtmann said Jackson-Davis's ability to play on the back line was disruptive.

"They controlled the paint both offensively and defensively," Holtmann said. "E.J. got bodied and knocked off a couple of his shots. He's got to play through to score the ball. We have to find ways to put him in better shots."

Indiana shot 41% but made only 2 of 15 3-point attempts. The Hoosiers held a 38-10 edge in points in the paint.

Ohio State kept it close for much of the second half, and Meechie Johnson Jr.'s 3-pointer cut Indiana's lead to 52-48 with 6:41 left. But Ohio State only made one basket the rest of the game.

"It's frustrating when you can't score," Holtmann said. "We missed some open shots, but we weren't able to impose ourselves on drives. We have work on film and clean up."

Xavier Johnson hit a pull-up jumper with 5 seconds left in the first half to give the Hoosiers a 33-30 lead. That was his only basket of the game. Jackson-Davis scored 16 points in the first half.

"It was a total team effort," Woodson said. "We were little down after we got back from Penn State. There was a little pushing to get them to erase that loss. We were able to rebound from it. I thought this was the best game we played all season in terms how we defended and how the ball moved offensively."

TIP-INS

Ohio State: Former Indiana player Joey Brunk, who sat out last season with the Hoosiers after back surgery, scored six points, all in the first half.

Indiana: Trey Galloway returned to action for the first time since breaking his left wrist on Nov. 17. He had eight points and two steals. "We knew that he was a piece that was missing," Woodson said.

POLL IMPLICATIONS

The Buckeyes with likely drop several spots after a 16-point loss to an unranked foe, although Indiana was a one-point favorite, according to FanDuel Sportsbook.

Havin' a record year: NFL marks set to fall in Week 18

BY BARRY WILNER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

When Eric Church sang about "havin' a record year," he wasn't referring to the NFL.

The country music star could have been.

For the 2021 season that ends this weekend with the first set of 17th games in league history, a slew of marks are about to be set. Major records, too.

Start with the most successful quarterback in NFL annals, naturally. Tom Brady leads in completions (456), yards passing (4,990) and touchdown passes (40). Tampa Bay's Brady is within striking distance of the single-season records for both passing yards (Peyton Manning's 5,477 for Denver in 2013) and completions (Drew Brees, 471 for New Orleans in 2016). Brady, of course, has that extra game to chase down Manning and Brees.

The Rams' Cooper Kupp leads in receptions with 138, receiving yards (1,829) and touchdown receptions (15) this season and is within striking distance of the single-season record for most receptions and receiving yards. The Saints' Michael Thomas, who won the Offensive Player of the Year award in 2019 when he had 149 catches, holds that mark.

Kupp will need a big game against San Francisco to get to Hall of Famer Calvin Johnson's yardage record of 1,964 in 2012. Kupp is at 1,829.

"The most important thing is that we win the game, lock down the division title and be ready to move into the playoffs here," Kupp said, "but it would be a very cool thing because of the respect I have for the players in this league and the talent that there is. It's a tough thing to do."

All records are tough to reach. If you have Brady throwing to you, though, extending a standard you've already set might be easier.

Bucs wide receiver Mike Evans enters this week with 946 receiving yards. With 54 against Carolina on Sunday, Evans will become the first player with at least 1,000 receiving yards in each of his first eight seasons.

That's something Bengals rookie Ja'Marr Chase might, well, chase as he moves along. Last week, Chase had 266 yards receiving, the most in a single game by a rookie. He now has 1,429 yards receiving the season, passing Minnesota's Justin Jefferson's 1,400 in 2020, a Super Bowl era mark. With 45 more yards at Cleveland on Sunday, he will surpass the Houston Oilers' Bill Groman's 1,473 in 1960 for the all-time rookie record.

In this season of spectacular newcomers at receiver, Miami's Jaylen Waddle seems bound for the record books. Waddle's 99 receptions are second most by a rookie, and with three more he will beat the 2003 standard set by Arizona's Anquan Boldin.

Getting tight ends into the mix, Atlanta's Kyle Pitts has 1,018 yards through the year. If he gets 59 against New Orleans, Pitts will blow by Hall of Famer Mike Ditka's 1,076 in 1961 for the most.

On the other side of the ball, the sacks mark set by Hall of Famer Michael Strahan — and helped by Brett Favre's pratfall — could fall when the Steelers face the Ravens. With 1½ sacks at Baltimore, T.J. Watt will break Strahan's' 2001 record of 22½. The stat became official in 1982.

With two sacks at Philadelphia on Saturday night, the Cowboys' Micah Parsons can surpass Tennessee's Jevon Kearse, who had 14½ in 1999 for the most sacks by a rookie.
